Passion speaks louder than words

Here's a generation defining question: how can America's energy supply be secured in a responsible manner? We believe the answer is technology - implemented by the right people. Our history has been built by competent, passionate and imaginative individuals with the courage to go the extra mile. Our team has developed technologies that take us deeper, help us extract heavier oil, improve recovery and enable us to work safely and responsibly even in the harshest environments. These talents are now working in onshore and offshore fields around the globe equipped with what we consider to be their most valuable tool - the courage to keep raising the bar.
